BELL BREAD CO. DATES WRAPPERS

The Baker Baking company, the Bakers of Bell Bread, with headquarters in Fort Worth, Texas, has announced that they are offering their bread products. During the past few weeks the new loaves have been displayed in Lake Okechobee region towns in the new dated wrappers.

The advantage of the dated wrappers, according to officials of the company, are all in favor of the customer. "We desire at all times that our patrons secure only the very best product," said an official of the company. "We desire, therefore, we have gone to this added expense of dating every wrapper to insure our customers of this freshness."

The new bread wrappers, used by the Baker Baking company, are easily distinguished by the color of the wrapper, when choosing a loaf of bread. In this issue of The Everglades News you will find an advertisement calling attention of the date and its location on each bread wrapper.

KIDDIES DONATE MANY TOYS FOR GIFTS TO NEEDY

Benefit Show Yesterday
Morning Means of Accumulating Items

The Prince Theatre in Pahokee was the scene of gaiety yesterday morning when the management staged a show for the children of the community, admission to which was a toy, old or new. And in the two large boxes of toys taken in charge by the Boy Scouts after the show there were to be found many items fresh from the merchant's shelf.

All of the toys that need repairing will be worked over by the Pahokee Boy Scouts and made ready to place in Santa's bag for distribution at Christmas time to those who may not be fortunate enough to receive small little gifts were it not for the present plan. A day of it here and there, a new dress for some of the dolls, a new hat or nut for the tricycles, new covers for the books and what ever needed for the day's work, to make the toys presentable at Yuletide.

Joe Tolle, acoustician, and Abe Dobrow, manager of the theatre, were on hand yesterday morning to assist the youngsters in placing their donations in the boxes. The children were before the lights were dimmed for the evening show. Every precaution was taken to make the two hours of entertainment as comfortable as possible for the little ones.

As screenland's famous comic characters cut their antics on the silver screen, youthful laughter pierced the air and those who were held in Pahokee but members were unanimous in deciding to give the ladies a little more of a treat this year than usual.

Bean Prices Don't Please All of the People All of the Time But Do Offer Some Surprises Some of the Time

This fall has been a good season. Nothing that anybody can say to the bean dealer in the upper Glades will be agreed with by everybody. There will be some growers who don't have enough production or sell at high enough price and some retail merchants who have sold at much more than the price they hoped for. Right now when the price is about 65 cents a hamper instead of $2.65, the growers who are selling at the low price tend to be in a bad humor and inclined to dispute any statement that may be made about the bean deal. And this is not surprising. They have the land in shape for another crop, may be for two more crops.

This fall's bean crop has been at smaller expense than any bean crop that was ever grown in this region, because seeds were so cheap. Growers were cheaper than ever before and labor and rent cost no more. The main reason for this was no flood or frost or disease to make the crop a failure. Yields were good. And also high superphosphate was used with labor-saving implements on large acreages, the large tracts permitting the use of heavy tractors. The conclusions that are set forth above are not just a newspaper man's idea—they are the opinions of growers, supply dealers, railroad men and brokers who look over the whole region and take a broad view. However, they may not be the opinion of a man who got on the market late and sold beans at 65 cents a hamper and then a bit later sold his hamper for $2.65 and $2.50 market.

Some of the men who have been informed on conditions in the upper Glades do not like to best their names used in quotations of their statements. Of this class is a grower who said: "The growers who sold beans at above $1.50 a hamper did not expect more than a dollar when they planted, and the growers who are selling beans at 65 cents a hamper now didn't expect more than a dollar when they planted, but they are glad to feel so when they remember that they missed the high price. If I had been a bean grower, I would have been a dollar when I planted a dollar when they were high."

Considering the heavy movement this fall, the crop was made on a surprisingly small investment of real cash by the growers. There was less credit than ever before, but at that there was a lot of credit. Commission house representatives and brokers put out some money, as they always do, and the growers' supply houses extended some credit, as they always do, and the government money. But, as the acreage planted was smaller than usual, so was the investment as required.

There are two classes of bean growers—first, the regular, steady, year-after-year growers, and the men who take a flyer once in a while. When the experienced grower plants his crop he knows that in the season more land will be planted than is needed if all of the land produces beans. He knows also that beans will not be grown on all of the land that is planted, because something is sure to happen to kill off a large part of the crop, some of the land is going to be overplanted or there will be a drought or a heavy frost when a large part of the plantings is killed off, there will be in the season when there will be too many beans—when the market won't stand up under the offerings.

What the experienced grower hopes for is that something in the season he will "hit"—that one or the other of the plantings will come to picking stage at a time when the market is good enough to let him make a little more than expenses. It's a chance he's got to take. For unless more land is planted than will make crops, there will not be enough beans to supply the market.

This early fall season was one when bean growers "got the breaks."

CHANGE IN THE QUEEN'S TASTE

It's not considered important news if a woman gets a new hat, but when the woman's the Queen of England—that's different. For many years Queen Mary has worn her own particular brand of ungarmented tulle. Recently, as shown above, she appeared with the king in public wearing a hat with a jaunty feather on the side.

The American Legion Auxiliary of Canal Point and Pahokee is preparing a box to be sent to the Crippled Children's hospital in St. Petersburg before Christmas. Contents of the box will consist of jellies, jam, towels, wash cloths, single bed sheets, pillow cases, material for dresser scarves, material for doll clothes, boys suits, dresses, or cash donations. A few toys would be welcomed.

If anyone other than Auxiliary members is interested in giving any of the above articles please leave them with Mrs. Claude Santos or Mrs. A. W. Fowler in Canal Point, Mrs. H. L. Lapp, Mrs. A. H. Henry, or Mrs. C. A. Bailey of Pahokee.

PAHOKEE SQUAD IS VICTORIOUS OVER 'CHOBEE 11

Frank Hobson's Men Sail
Along to Easy Victory
The Tune of 26 to 0

Playing before a record Thanksgiving day crowd of interested football fans the Pahokee high and Okechobee eleven were victorious through four quarters for a final accounting of 26 to 0 in favor of the locals. At no time during the entire encounter was the outcome of the affair in doubt. The visitors were outplayed throughout the game but not once did they cease in their efforts to advance the ball across the blue and white goal line.

During the first quarter of the game Pahokee added two touchdowns and a field goal to a total of 13 points. During the second quarter the local eleven scored a touchdown and a field goal, but in the third quarter added six more points. In the final frame of the afternoon's entertainment the local eleven added two touchdowns and the try for extra point was good.

The afternoon was an ideal one for a football game. Student cheering boys representing each of the high schools were the actors throughout the two hours that their favorites battled for honors. The spectators had yelled from the bleachers and the crowd followed a moment later by more yells from the visitors' cheering squad. The crowd was in a holiday mood and school officials stated that it was one of the largest crowds to attend a local game in many a month.

Much comment was made about the fact that the Pahokee squad outweighed the Okechobee team. It did a little more than three times as much weight to the man, according to the statistics contained in the official program issued by the Athletic Association for the turkey game period. However, that the visitors were minus in weight they made up for in fighting and stick-toughness during the contest.

The first touchdown scored by the Pahokee eleven was by Frank Hobson, who scored on a play from the line. (Continued on Page Six)

An entirely new field of production possibilities has been opened up to Harold Lloyd with the assured success of his first venture in filming an original story, "The Cat's Paw," a novel by Clarence Budington Kelland.

"The Cat's Paw" comes to the screen of the Prince Theatre in Falmouth on Sunday and Monday.

Not in his many years of comedy making, except for a series of four stories purchased from Tom Donagan (Tad), famous cartoonist, nearly eighteen years ago, has Lloyd ever made a picture from a published story.

There were several reasons why he never operated from stories other than those created by himself and staff. He felt that in producing from stage plays or popular published stories, he would be robbed of the surprise element which he used to feel so important to his peculiar style of comedy.

ZINC SULPHATE SPRAY FOR BEANS

The Everglades Experiment station reports that yellowed beans results have been obtained with zinc sulphate sprays on soyabean beans. Growers in the Belle Glade and Canal Point areas went to the station with a new trouble this fall. They found that beans failed to grow in certain fields although bluestones, manganese and complete fertilizers were used.

Zinc sulphate was sprayed on beans in these fields with the result that the beans were green and thrifty within a week, whereas the ones not sprayed continued to decline.

The experiments are being conducted by Dr. G. Townsend at the Experiment station and in nearby farms. He will be glad to make suggestions to growers who may be having trouble with beans on beans or other crops.

TUBERCULOSIS TAKES BIG TOLL

JACKSONVILLE, Nov. 29. (FNS)—Statistics show that tuberculosis takes the lives of more persons between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other disease in Florida.

Diagnostic clinics are sponsored by the State Board of Health and the Florida Tuberculosis Health association in many counties throughout the state in order to find the early cases, when there are greater chances of recovery.

These clinics reveal that young negro women are the most frequent sources of infection. The death rate among negroes is approximately four times that among whites.

More About Beans

A man in the "bean business" ought to have some sense to start with, and it is helpful if he has skill and experience, and he will have to be energetic, but he will need to "get a break" once in a while, too.

Growers tell many stories of accidents—or luck—by which they lost or made money, and shippers as well as growers—N. N. Stirling, George Tedder, Jim Darden and others.

In the season after the 1928 hurricane, Jim Darden was planting seed peas that he bought from Joe Friedheim. On one day's planting of five bags he happened to notice a tag on a bag; he thought he was planting five bags of Little Marvels, but the bags showed there were two bags of Joseph Laxton, which had got in by some mistake. Well, it was too bad but there wasn't anything he could do about it—it was "just one of those things," so the Laxtons stayed the vines green, and then came a frost—and killed everything in that locality except the Laxtons.

Mr. Darden made more money on the Laxton peas than he would have made on all his peas and beans if there hadn't been a frost.

When Walter Hooker, the Morries, Bob and Louis Creach, Joe Cherry, any of the Rawls brothers or the Marchens and others are sitting around the door store taking money from themselves and not for publication, you will hear stories of "frakes" by which thousands of dollars were made or lost, seeming to prove that human intelligence is the smallest factor. An experienced grower will prepare his land at what seems to be the right time, use the seed recommended by experience, fertilize properly and plant in the accepted manner. Across the property line some darn fool will do what seems to be wrong in every particular—and sell $3,000 worth of beans while the other man loses his shirt because of frost or flood or market conditions that were beyond individual control.

One time when beans were selling at 35 cents or 40 cents (if they sold at all), the movement being heavy, there came a flooding rain in the Sand Cut district and the price went way high. Think what that meant to speculators who had bought, and think too what it meant to brokers who had sold. Profits of as much as $500 a car were made in some cases.

The Dog That Knew Death

Looks like an ordinary dog, but "Lazarus" is far from ordinary. He was once a dead dog. Robert Gamaliel, California scientist, revived him four minutes after Lazarus had exhibited all the signs of death. A dog who lay on his back, he is shown above as the dog the first walking lesson of his second life.

Uncle Sam Searches Abroad for Grass That Will Defy Future Drouths

If our midwestern plains had been covered with grass sturdy enough to withstand high temperatures and hold the soil in place despite strong winds, much of the damage and distress suffered in by 1933's disastrous drought would have been avoided.

Because this was not the case, cattle died the fiercest and rich topsoil drifted from midwestern farms with each hot breeze.

To arm against such future tragedies, the U. S. Department of Agriculture is scouring the world for a drought-resistant grass.

The search is beginning in Central Asia.

In the Gobi Desert—where grasses have been known to survive temperatures ranging from 100 degrees F. to 40 below zero—

a veteran explorer has been assigned to find a type of grass suitable for transplanting in the United States to be used in rebuilding its ravaged western rangelands.

Prof. Nicholas Roerich, eminent Russian archeologist, painter, and recognized authority on Central Asia, heads the expedition, already "on location." Aiding him are his son, George, expert on Central Asiatic things; H. O. MacMillan and J. L. Stephens, Department of Agriculture grass experts.

Boldness drought-proof grasses, the explorers will seek grasses and shrubs with root stocks of a type suitable for preventing wind and water erosion, which robs American farmers of millions of dollars' worth of topsoil annually.

Vegetation covering these specifications is believed to flourish in remote sections of the Gobi, where the rainfall annually is less than 15 inches (half the average rainfall in the middle west during the drought months of this year).

OTHER such expeditions, launched by the Department of Agriculture, have proved their worth. A type introduced in this country by the department's experts are valued at $100,000,000 annually.

Among them are the hardy wheat called durum; Persian alfalfa, now the most important variety in California; Fines cotton, the great crop of the Salt River Valley, Ariz.; the date palm, now grown as an established industry in the southwest; Sudan grass, an important forage crop in many states; and others.

And the department places great faith in Dr. Roerich. For the last 11 years, he has made extensive scientific and cultural forays into Siberia, Kashmir, Tibet, Chinese Turkestan, Mongolia, the Gobi Desert, and the Altai region.

During one year, amidst terrible hardships from which he and his son, George, emerged with a score of caravan animals "perished," Dr. Roerich and his son, George, were confined in a tent by Tibetan authorities while the temperature ranged constantly about 30 degrees below zero.

In the last few years the distinguished man's interest turned to Tibetan botanical lore, which aided the department to obtain his invaluable services.

BARNETT BROS. 3-RING CIRCUS TO SHOW HERE

It has been several years since Pahokee and Canal Point have been treated to the odd sight of lumbering elephants troking through the business section but when the Barnett Bros. three ring circus arrives for their two performances Friday, Dec. 7th, the management promises the novel sight of five of these natives of Asia, in addition to the many beautiful horses, ridden by the queens of the arena, decked in bright and cherry colors of the circus, also in the parade.

There will be cages of wild animals, camels, lions, tigers, and with the 20 clowns in action running wild along the line of march followed by three bands of music.

It promises to be an exciting day for the kids as well as the grownups. There will be three rings filled to capacity with acrobatic novelties from all parts of the world, acrobats, trapeze performers, bare back riders, and aerial stars, many of whom are making their first tour under canvas on this side of the Atlantic.

There will also be a company of real western cow boys, cow girls, fancy rifle shots and daring riding men and women of the plains who present a complete rodeo performance in conjunction with the circus performance. Two shows will be given and the children are not forgotten. A special price ticket being issued to children under 12 years of age.

GLADES AFFAIRS

Last summer when W. H. Swan, Jr. came back to Belle Glade from Arizona he brought two horned toads, male and female, with the idea of mating them and raising them in the Everglades. But horned toads are dry land products and it was a rainy summer in the Everglades, so the scheme didn't pan out. But it's an idea, and the opportunity is open to anyone who will use it.

In Belle Glade more than in any other town in the Lake region, vacant lots are used for flowers, fruits and vegetables. The whole town of Belle Glade is mucky whereas there is a good deal of sand at Canal Point. Pahokee and Clewiston, and as vegetable growing is more prolific in muck than in sand, it is a job at Belle Glade to keep down the grasses and weeds. In many cases the job is taken care of by making use of the vacant lots as above stated. C. E. Riedel spends on an average for a year $2 a day to keep his grass and cultivate garden plots. Dr. Finkler is keeping a lot free of weeds by raising strawberries. Mr. Jackson, the Methodist pastor, is another strawberry grower. Dave Patten and George Parnell have a patch of Irish potatoes. C. E. Beemer grows vegetables and takes them to Lake Worth to sell. This sort of thing could be made to pay but it is difficult to give the general idea.

Every once in a while a truck goes into the boggy place along Belle Glade-Pahokee road, spilling drugs or bread or other merchandise. This is a state road, and it is not a through road—actually it is a farm road, for it has little other use than to serve the farmers. We venture to say there is no farm road in Florida on which there is so much traffic. While there is an unusually heavy volume of traffic on this road, the road is unusual in construction, being elevated above the level of the country through which it runs and having a deep ditch on one side. The combination of conditions makes it highly desirable that the road be widened.

Service clubs and town councils get lots of volunteered suggestions from out-siders, and usually the suggestions are respectable. Recollection of this fact keeps us from suggesting that the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce or some other organization make the improvement of Belle Glade-Pahokee road a primary objective, the idea being a phrase often employed. This newspaper is content for the moment to let these paragraphs stand in the present form, but it is a subject that deserves all the public attention that can be spared from the bean crop.

If the secretary and engineers of the State Road Department could see the service done by a foot-bridge attached to the road over Hillsboro canal at Belle Glade, they would be glad that they did. Many accidents, probably dozens, have been avoided by installing a passageway for pedestrians.

This region suffers by the vacation habit, however, much benefit the individuals may get by making trips in the summer. Many of the people who come here during the summer are the leading citizens, whose opinion and help are needed when public matters are to be pressed upon public officials. When the leading citizens get back in the fall he jumps into preparations for the bean crop—he's too busy to serve on a committee, and he keeps on being too busy until the farming season ends. When the farming season ends, then it's usually too late or too early to take up the public matter, and thus it drags from year to year.

PAHOKEE SQUAD IS VICTORIOUS

The Pahokee eleven came in the first quarter when Uphergrove received the ball on a triple pass and carried it 30 yards before being downed, and on the next play Sapp carried it over. The second marker came when Tabb picked up a punt and raced 80 yards through the visiting team to score. The try for extra point was good. Score 13 to 0.

Starting the second half the Pahokee eleven got under way again and Tabb once more got away for a 40 yard run and another marker. The try for extra point failed. Score 19 to 0.

In the final frame of the afternoon's battle Tabb once more got through the visitors to score again and his try for extra point was good. Score 26 to 0.

Tabb and Sapp scored the actual points but they were surrounded by a bunch of men who played the game for them. In clearing the path for them they might chalk up the markers. Hobson's the visitors, but from the starting whistle the "Chokey" boys were lifted for a display.

The Pahokee squad was as follows: Uphergrove, Shackford, Denton, Steve, Carlisle, Warrick, Uwin, Daine, Cason, Sapp, Jones, Tabb, Herron, Green, Maxson, Altman, Tynen, Hamrick, Household and Allen.

The visitors line-up was as follows: Davis, Clements, Goff, Vick, Green, Graugh, Baggett, Hightower, McDaniel, Todd, Watford, Sloan, White, Hamrick, Pulford and Hineham.

BIRTHDAY BALLS TO BE HELD JANUARY 30

MIAMI, Nov. 29.—(FNS)—Col. Henry L. Doherty, originator of the Roosevelt birthday ball, has a means for financially aiding the Georgia Warm Springs foundation for victims of infantile paralysis. The President stipulated that 70 per cent of the collection raised at the next national birthday party go to local committees and doctors for the care of infantile paralysis victims in their own communities. The remaining 30 per cent would be expended for research work. The trustees of Georgia Warm Springs foundation concurred with the recommendations made by the President.

Last year more than a million dollars was raised for the Warm Springs foundation. The funds to be raised at the next birthday ball would not go to this institution. The President stipulated that 70 per cent of the collection raised at the next national birthday party go to local committees and doctors for the care of infantile paralysis victims in their own communities. The remaining 30 per cent would be expended for research work. The trustees of Georgia Warm Springs foundation concurred with the recommendations made by the President.

ABOUT PEOPLE

Peter Muller, a carpenter at Belle Glade, is erecting a dwelling house on one of two lots he has bought in the block in which the telephone company building is located. Pete, born in Holland and an adherent of the Holiness sect, is well known in this region. For the section of the house that he has put up he has a novel plan of his own design. He may start a house on this same plan in Arcadia several years ago and because of hard luck he lost the property. Then he moved to Fort Myers and started another house on the same plan and he lost, too. But he is sure that in Belle Glade he will be able to carry the plan through. Pete has many friends in all of these towns and they hope his perseverance will be rewarded with success.

Three residents of Belle Glade are former residents of the State of Oregon. They are H. F. Pierce, Henry Stettinberg and Judge Hubbard. They had never met until recently in Belle Glade. The period of their residence in the Northwest was in the pioneer days, when and where conditions were worse than any in the Glades. Mr. Hubbard, the justice of the peace in the Belle Glade district. This is not his first experience as such, for he held the same position in Oregon.

The first name, or "given" or Christian name of the five-year daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Watts of Belle Glade is Kilo. Her name, then, is Kilo Watts, which sounds like an item on a bill from the Florida Power & Light Company. This isn't the only remarkable thing about the little girl, who has three living grandparents. Her father's father is 64 years old and looks to be no more than in early middle age and has abundant energy and optimism.

W. J. Rawls, a Hollywood (Fla.) man who farms at Belle Glade, is the father of the famous swimmer, Katherine Rawls, whose name is always mentioned in Miami daily papers in connection with aquatic events. W. J. is one of the five brothers all living in Hollywood and all having farm connections in the upper Glades.

L. R. Bland of West Palm Beach, who for five years was the salesman and delivery man in the upper Glades for another bottling company, is now with the Nehi company of Miami Beach.

Paul Deem, once a resident of Clewiston, is now making his headquarters at Belle Glade, connected with a real estate firm. "After leaving Clewiston a few years ago he went back to Michigan but he didn't stay there long. He Everglades experience making him long for Florida. He likes this area."

After an absence of several years, "H. H. Stettin" of Belle Glade, N. J., is back in the Central Florida Pahokee district buying beans. He is remembered here as having, in a business experiment with beans, an experiment that met some bad luck. Just before coming to Florida, Mr. Stettin spent 30 months in Nevada on a gold mining deal. The gold mining venture was not successful but he thinks he can make more money handling lake trout beans.

HARRISON NAMED
